Purpose and activities: The foundation is committed to defending the basic freedoms guaranteed to all Americans, combating all forms of discrimination and prejudice, and improving the conditions of the poor and underprivileged through the creation or support of charitable and educational programs with the same goals. It is also committed to providing educational opportunity to deserving students through post-secondary education scholarships, and to promoting editorial cartooning through continued research.

Program area(s): The grantmaker has identified the following area(s) of interest:

Defending Freedoms: The foundation seeks proposals which aim to safeguard the basic freedoms guaranteed in the Bill of Rights, and to help eliminate all forms of prejudice and discrimination, as well as oversight of government agencies. Anti-discrimination projects which involve joint efforts of two or more organizations are encouraged. The foundation will also consider proposals that address contemporary societal issues that may arise.

Encouraging Citizen Involvement: The foundation seeks to help ensure a responsible, responsive democratic government through citizen involvement. Proposals may focus on citizen education, greater voter participation in the electoral process. All projects must be nonpartisan and may not involve lobbying for specific legislation or candidates.

Pathways Out of Poverty: This program focuses on helping needy young people and adults gain a quality education. For projects serving youth, the foundation seeks proposals which focus on improving student achievement and healthy development of young people of middle school age and above. Projects may include in-school and community-based educational programs, after-school activities, and mentoring programs. Programs designed to increase high school graduation rates are encouraged to apply. For projects serving adults, the foundation seeks proposals to provide literacy education and GED preparation, and to offer vocational training and job placement.

Scholarship Program: This program is designed to serve high school graduates, first-year college students or those who went to work after high school, and now wish to resume their studies. See foundation Web site for scholarship guidelines and information.

Purpose and activities: The mission of the organization is to sustain vital human services for those who need help most while reducing such needs for future generations.

Program area(s): The grantmaker has identified the following area(s) of interest:

Personal Renewal Experiences Fund: Funds are available to individuals working in the human services industry for a personal renewal experience, and to allow for opportunities for United Way of Central Indiana to 'fill the void' created by the individual's absence from their job during this experience. Funds received for this purpose are considered taxable income.

Ruth Lilly Philanthropic Foundation Grant: Grants up to $50,000 are available to local human service organizations that deliver programs that work towards the following community outcomes: freedom from abuse, neglect, and victimization; access to temporary and emergency assistance; opportunities for optimum physical health; high levels of independence for older adults; social and emotional well-being through community engagement; development of successful life-skills and capabilities in youth; improved individual and family support for those involved with the juvenile justice system; maintaining a critical social service web; and improving quality of life for all members of a community. Eligible organizations need not be affiliated with United Way.

Transition-in-Place Program for Homeless Families: Funding is available to qualified organizations to establish a Transition-in-Place program to serve homeless families in the Indianapolis metropolitan area. The Transition-in-Place program is a permanent housing program model in which homeless families obtain housing in the community through a lease in their own name while receiving supporting services and rental assistance for a specified duration of time. Unlike traditional transitional housing models which require individuals to move after two years, this program has been shown to be a better, most cost-effective approach for some families to achieve housing stability. Applicant organizations must: have been in existence for two or more years; have a direct relationship with the family emergency shelter system; have experience in successfully working with homeless families using a Housing First/Housing plus model; have the capacity to match service funding with rental subsidies; and have maintained fiscal accountability, including conducting an independent audit, within the last two years. Applicant agencies are not required to be United Way partner agencies.

United Christmas Service: Donated gifts (including food, clothing, and toys) are available to low-income individuals and families for the holiday season. Applicants can be referred by caseworkers from partner organizations, or apply individually for support; those who are referred will receive preference.

Winter Assistance Fund: Emergency funding is available to individuals and families who are unable to pay their heating bills during the winter months, and are not eligible for government energy assistance programs. This program runs from January until May.

Fields of interest: Child development, education; Children, foster care; Education, reading; Housing/shelter, services; Human services.

Geographic focus: Indiana

Limitations: Giving limited to Boone, Hamilton, Hancock, Hendricks, Marion, and Morgan counties, IN.

W. K. Kellogg Foundation

1 Michigan Ave. E.

Battle Creek, MI 49017-4058

Telephone: (269) 968-1611

Contact: Debbie Rey, Supvr., Proposal Processing

FAX: (269) 968-0413

URL: <http://www.wkkf.org>

Purpose and activities: The W.K. Kellogg Foundation supports children, families, and communities as they strengthen and create conditions that propel vulnerable children to achieve success as individuals and as contributors to the larger community and society.

Program area(s): The grantmaker has identified the following area(s) of interest:

Employee Matching Gifts: The foundation matches gifts of all full-time employees, officers, trustees, and retired employees to eligible organizations having status as a public institution under Section 501(c)(3) and 509(a) of the Internal Revenue Code and foreign charitable organizations determined equivalent to a U.S. Section 501(c)(3) and 509(a) organization. This includes schools, government units, hospital or medical research facilities, religious organizations, and public-supported charities. Only direct gifts of cash or marketable securities to the charity by an eligible donor will be matched. The minimum gift is $25 and the maximum is $100,000 per eligible donor per calendar year. The maximum total corporate payout per employee, per year is $200,000. Gifts are matched on a two-to-one ratio. Contributions by the foundation may not be used to provide personal benefits to, or to discharge a pledge or other legal obligation of, the donor. Similarly, contributions by a donor that provide personal benefits to the donor or other person such as payments of tuition, membership dues, subscriptions, and other similar fees, are not eligible for matching grants by the foundation.

Food Systems and Rural Development: Food Systems and Rural Development at the foundation fills a programming niche the foundation feels is undertaken by few other major foundations. The food systems grantmaking focuses on catalyzing efforts that lead to a safe, wholesome food supply for this and future generations while ensuring that food production and food-related business systems are economically viable, environmentally sensitive, sustainable long-term, and socially responsible. The rural development work supports comprehensive, collaborative, and integrative efforts of people, organizations, and institutions. Together, the foundation believes they create social and economic opportunities that lead to healthy rural communities and improvement in the lives of rural residents.

Greater Battle Creek: The foundation maintains strong ties to Battle Creek, Michigan, which was W.K. Kellogg's hometown. The foundation does this by partnering with the community to help people reach their full educational and economic potential. The ultimate goal is to create a more just, healthy, and sustainable community. Grantmaking is focused largely on: 1) creating brighter future through improved education for youth; and 2) increasing self-sufficiency by promoting economic growth for families and neighborhoods.

Health: Health programming at the foundation focuses explicitly on improving individual and community health, and improving access to and the quality of health care. The current goal is to promote health among vulnerable individuals and communities through programming that: empowers individuals, mobilizes communities, engages institutions, improves health care quality and access, and informs public and marketplace policy. Grantmaking takes into account the social and economic determinants of health within a person's community, the quality of health institutions within that community and the policies that determine how health services are organized, provided, and financed. Grantmaking also targets communities, health care systems, and public health as a center of change.

Latin America and the Caribbean: In Latin America, the foundation takes an integrated approach in addressing its key programming interests. Following are the strategies that detail these interests: 1) Regional Development: Attention is given to supporting groups of projects that demonstrate ways to break the local cycle of poverty in selected micro-regions. Strategies to promote the development, participation, and leadership of local youth are central to this effort. Priority geographic areas targeted by this work include: southern Mexico and Central America (including parts of the Caribbean), northeast Brazil, and the Andean zones of Bolivia, Peru, and southern Ecuador. 2) Application of Knowledge and Best Practices (Programmatic Approaches): The foundation supports projects in Latin America and the Caribbean that offer innovative approaches in leadership development, citizenship and social responsibility, institution-building and strategic alliances, and the access to information technology. The aim of this approach is to build the capacity of individuals, communities, and institutions to put regional development projects into action.

Learning Opportunities: To increase the effectiveness of the foundation's work, it seeks to learn from the knowledge, experiences, and lessons learned by all of its projects as they apply to Leadership, Information and Communication Technology, Capitalizing on Diversity, and Social and Economic Community Development. All prospective grantees are encouraged to consider these elements when designing a proposal to fit the programming interests previously described.

Philanthropy and Volunteerism: The foundation has long been committed to enhancing and promoting philanthropy and volunteerism. Current programming is focused on building a mutually responsible and just society in which all have the ability and means to contribute to the common good. The foundation believes that everyone gives in various ways - time, money, and experience. Therefore, programming activities seek to unleash resources by supporting the emergence of new leaders and donors, creating and sharing knowledge, and building tools that advance the effectiveness and innovation of the philanthropic sector. Key target populations include youth, women, and communities of color.

Southern Africa: In Botswana, Lesotho, Malawi, Mozambique, South Africa, Swaziland, and Zimbabwe, an integrated approach is taken to addressing the foundation's key programming interests. Following are the strategies that detail these interests: 1) Strengthen Leadership Capacity: This strategy serves as the primary integrator of all three strategies for work in the region. Current programming seeks to build the capacity of leaders at the local, provincial, national, regional, and global levels. It is also concerned with increasing community voices in the policy development process to strengthen young leaders for the 21st century. 2) Strengthen the Capacity of Communities: This programming strategy targets district-level sites to increase cooperation among local government, business, community-based organizations, education institutions and agencies, and to enhance participation of rural youth in social and economic development. 3) Organizational and Institutional Development and Transformation: Attention is focused on improving the southern African social infrastructure through institutions of higher education, organizations that create employment and productivity, and information systems that support social development.

Youth and Education: Using a holistic, child-centered approach, Youth and Education programs address the preschool through college continuum - ages 0 to 24. The overall goal is to support healthy infant, child, and youth development by mobilizing, strengthening, and aligning systems that affect children's learning. The strategies are: 1) mobilize youth, families, and communities to inform policies that affect learning and achievement for vulnerable children and youth; and 2) forge partnerships between education institutions and communities to promote learning, academic performance, and workforce preparation among vulnerable young people.

New York, NY 10118-2996

Contact: Maria Mottola, Exec. Dir.

URL: <http://www.nyf.org/>

Purpose and activities: The foundation supports groups in New York City that are working on problems of urgent concern to residents of disadvantaged communities and neighborhoods. The foundation is particularly interested in start-up grants to new, untested programs that have few other sources of support. Grants are not limited to specified issue areas, although under the terms of a restricted endowment, half the foundation's grants are reserved for projects involving the elderly. Instead, the foundation looks at the characteristics of the organization or project applying. Because the foundation believes in a pluralist, inclusive democracy, it seeks to support programs emerging from communities where existing services and institutions do not reach, neighborhoods taking action for their own betterment, and population groups organizing to create a collective voice where they have not been heard.

Program area(s): The grantmaker has identified the following area(s) of interest: Leadership Development; Organizer's Expense Account; Summer Internship; Technical Assistance Grants.

Fields of interest: African Americans/Blacks; Aging; Aging, centers/services; AIDS, people

Applications available on foundation Web site. E-mail: amy@yourfoundation.org.

Organizational Impact Grantmaking Program: Organizational Impact Grants address local nonprofit needs for increasing management capacity to sustain long-term success and growth. Projects should focus on one or more of the following management areas: strategic planning, board or staff development, resources development, improved technology/data management, financial management, marketing, or nonprofit administrative merger activities. If a strategic plan has not been developed within the previous three years, plans to do so should be included as part of the project. Grants will: have a measurable impact, be a catalyst for community improvement, encourage collaboration among area organizations and support projects that build organizational capacity. Application guidelines available on foundation Web site. E-mail for program information: amy@yourfoundation.org.

Purpose and activities: Funds to be used for historic restoration projects, performing arts organizations, and cultural programs; promotion of health, science, and education; community and social services; and the field of religion.

Program area(s): The grantmaker has identified the following area(s) of interest:

Moody Scholars Program: The program was created in 1969 to serve Galveston County graduating seniors. More than 4000 students have received over $9 million. Applicants must be able to demonstrate high academic ability and some degree of financial need in order to pursue their higher education. To be eligible, the student must be in the top twenty-five percent of their graduating senior class. They also must have a minimum 88 GPA which is determined by the counseling staff. Applications for the program will be distributed by a Moody Foundation representative in the fall either in an assembly or by the counselor's office. Financial need is a consideration for this award and it is renewable for up to four years. The funds are for undergraduate work only and must be used in the state of Texas. In 2004, the program expanded to include Lincoln and Madison high schools in Dallas, Tx., bringing the number of schools to fourteen. The honor scholar's category of the program is offered in Galveston County. The top ten students from each high school are submitted to the foundation by the counseling office. Applicants are considered on the basis of academic excellence and extracurricular activities. Financial need is not a consideration for this award. This is a one-time award which may be directed by the student to their chosen Texas college or university. The highest award given is the Patricia B. Allen Award. This student is chosen by The Moody Scholar Selection Committee, and in their estimation is the most excellent student in Galveston County. Visit foundation Web site for list of participating schools.
